

6 Questions to Ask an ELD Provider

If you're ready to purchase an electronic logging device, you probably have a lot of questions related to ELD Mandate compliance. Choosing the best device is a decision that will impact your fleet and drivers for many years, so it's important to ask questions about compliance and find out what else the device and provider can do for you.

1 Does the product meet the FMCSA & CCMTA requirements?

The ELD Mandate deadline has passed. Contact the provider you're considering to find out if the product is AOB RD or ELD compliant.

2 Is the provider credible?

Does the provider have a track record of meeting compliance standards for their devices and software? Many will say they have a compliant product — but there is no verification process by the FMCSA. Trust, credibility, and history in the industry play major roles when choosing an ELD provider.

3 How is the provider going to support you?

Make sure the provider will be there when you need them most — when you have questions, or need help with setup and installation, or you're requesting training materials. The value of great customer service is priceless.

4 Is the product dependable and easy to use?

You are going to use, and rely on, this product a lot. It's important that it be user-friendly and dependable — so you don't have to worry.

5 What else can the product do?

Not all ELDs will be one-size-fits-all, and that's a good thing! Some actually have benefits beyond hours of service. Tired of stopping at weigh stations, getting stuck in traffic, and dealing with burdensome IFTA paperwork? Industry leading ELD solutions can solve all of these problems — and more.

6 How much does the product cost?

Cost of the device, installation, and recurring fees are important to consider. Products with higher up-front costs might actually be cheaper in the long run — and vice versa.
